The seminar declaration on participants common rights and duties

We, the participants of the CCIVS seminar on cultural diversity and voluntary service, came together on 5th of April in Kostelecke Horky in the Czech Republic,

Committed to making this seminar a succes in putting all of us in the philosophic process that is required to promote intercultural learning in workcamps and beyond,

Recalling that the main working method should be playing games

Proclaim the following rights and duties, that should be respected during this seminar, and adopt the present declaration:

All participants:

- 1) should feel free to discuss anything
- 2) have the right to ask anything
- 3) have the duty to respect the others (always, but especially during meetings)
- 4) have to try VERY HARD to be on time for every session and every meal
- 5) have the right to voice objections and criticism
- 6) are obliged to turn of their cellphone during all the sessions
- 7) have the duty to take a very quick shower to give everyone the opportunity to have a hot shower
- 8) have the right to object to being filmed

Signed, the organisers and participants of the CCIVS cultural diversity seminar, Kostelecke Horky, April 5, 2006
